TATAMI - HANDLOOM

Hand-weaving is an ancient artisan technique originating in India that means the rugs last in time. It offers similar aesthetics and quality to those of hand-knotted rugs, with the difference that this process speeds up production.

The Tatami rugs have simple geometric patterns, they are woven line by line on a horizontal loom.

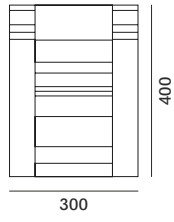

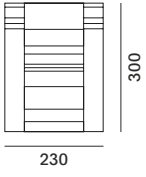

Composition: 75% wool and 25% bamboo silk (innovative natural-origin yarn obtained from bamboo vegetable fibre processing).

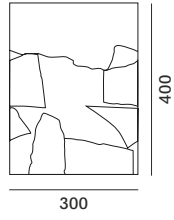

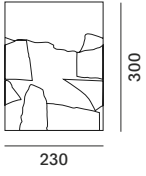

FRAMMENTI - HANDLOOM TAFTATI

Hand-tufted rugs are the result of an artisan weaving technique that allows threads of wool or other material (silk, viscose, linen, aloe, etc...) to be inserted.

The threads are inserted using a gun and follow the pattern traced on the rug. This is the world's most widespread production technique.

It allows for an unlimited selection of patterns, shapes and colours. Composition: 59% wool and 41% viscose.
